Township Mourns Warren Gravestock

The death last Saturday in a Palo Alto hospital of Warren Edward Gravestock, 52, civic leader and vice-principal of Washington Union High School, cast a pall of sadness over the Township's holiday preparations.

Gravestock, a widely-known figure in California's adult educational circles, had been ill about three months.

After receiving his master's degree at Stanford University and following a period of teaching in Washington, Gravestock came to the local school in 1929. He became night-school principal in 1942 and vice-principal in 1944.

Gravestock was a former president of the Township Community Chest, St. James' Men's Club, the Niles Rotary Club, and the Men's Club of Washington Township. He also was past master of Alameda Lodge of Masons. His education-society memberships were numerous.

Tribute to the educator was paid today by High School Superintendent J. V. Goold, speaking for Gravestock's friends and associates. Said he:

"Nothing anyone could say would be enough to express what the loss of Warren Gravestock means to the school and the community he served so ably, and the many individuals whose lives he touched by his kindness.

"Warren's thoughtfulness of others was his ruling character trait. It is typical that his last thoughts as expressed to Mrs. Gravestock were for the night school to which he devoted so much of his life.

"He was beloved of every age for his rare ability to handle youngsters and adults alike. Warren Gravestock simply cannot be replaced."

Survivors of the educator include his widow, Lois; two children, Don and Mary Ann; his mother, Mrs. Mary Emma Gravestock, and three sisters and a brother, all of Palo Alto.

Funeral services were Monday in Chapel of the Palms, under direction of Alameda Lodge and the Rev. Arthur Freeman, rector of St. James' Church. Final rites were held at Alta Mesa Cemetery, Palo Alto.

Friends are asked to send memorials to the American Cancer Society.

WRIGHT WON'T QUIT PLAN COMMISSION

R. J. Wright, chairman of the County Planning Commission, announced this week he does not intend to retire when his term expires next February.

"I've been on the board 12 years," Wright declared from his Irvington office to a query by The Register. "No doubt I will be appointed again."

County planning commissioners, of which there are seven, are named by the supervisors. Supervisor Chester E. Stanley said last week he thinks they all ought to come from areas which are being planned—the rural areas.

Wright hinted the unincorporated regions may get another representative before long. He said one commissioner, who lives in Oakland, has indicated he wants to retire, and Wright said it is possible he may be replaced by one from the unincorporated districts.

Newark Chamber of Commerce members have complained that Wright's chairmanship seldom allows him to exercise his voice in behalf of Township issues. But Wright replies to that:

"I do my fighting when we go on our field trips."

MASONIC HOME TO FETE YULETIDE

Some 300 residents of Decoto's big Masonic Home will celebrate Christmas in traditional style this year, according to Superintendent James Eubanks.

A 50-foot outdoor tree was lighted with Yuletide ceremony last week, and the Home plans a Christmas Eve motion picture show, 10 a.m. church services on Christmas Day, and a turkey dinner at noon.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. Cecil Rhoades, pastor of the Irvington Community Presbyterian Church. Mr. Rhoades recently was appointed chaplain of the Home, succeeding the Rev. Howard Steward of Centerville, who moved to Carson City.

Oldest resident of the Home to take part in the Yuletide plans is Frank Quiltey of San Jose, who will be 100 next August, and who is celebrating his 19th Christmas in the Masonic institution.

POWER'S OFF BUT NOT IN TOWNSHIP

A distribution changeover by the PG&E in the Sunol area today (Tuesday) will affect Washington Township hardly at all.

This word came today from Peter Juhl, PG&E manager here, who said the switch will cut power from about eight local consumers, ranchers in the Mill Creek Road area northeast of Mission San Jose.

Power will be off in Sunol and surrounding regions, however, for most of the day as the utility completes its work to bring expanded service there.

Decoto to See 'Plan'

Decoto will have its look at the Township's proposed "master plan" January 6 at a dinner meeting in Our Lady of the Holy Rosary community hall.

John Jay Thomas, secretary of the County Planning Commission, will be on hand to exhibit maps and explain the suggestions in them for orderly growth in the Township. Thomas will outline how Decoto, which already is zoned, could fit into the proposed scheme.

J. P. Caldeira, chairman of the board of directors of the Decoto Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the meeting, announces a slate of chamber officers, headed by Manuel Hidalgo, re-elected president, will be installed.

Township Drainage Plans Include Ditches to the Bay

The holiday season isn't interrupting plans of local and county officials to solve Washington Township's drainage problems which are blocking growth in many areas.

These developments were noted this week

1. County supervisors will hold a hearing immediately after January 1 to form Zone 5 of the county flood-control district.

2. R. J. Wright, chairman of the Irvington-Mission Sanitary District, will confer with engineers to see how much it will cost to have the district assume flood-control powers around Irvington.

3. County flood-control engineers have laid out a proposed system of open drainage ditches they believe adequate to carry runoff waters from subdivisions between Centerville and Newark.

The county's flood-control advisory board, under W. D. Patterson of Newark, has been meeting during the past week to sketch boundaries for proposed Zone 5.

At a hearing, still to be set by Flood Engineer Herbert Crowl, the supervisors must set these boundaries. They are expected to include all the Alameda Creek watershed, including the Livermore-

CHRISTMAS 1952

About 2000 years ago, a child was born of Mary and Joseph. He grew up to be a true son of God. He preached Peace On Earth, Good Will To Men. He practiced what he preached. When He was crucified, He prayed forgiveness for His crucifyers.

Men have made His birthday a world-wide occasion. But through the centuries, a lot of the true meaning has gone from Christmas. Now instead of praying and rejoicing for his birthday, people shower gifts upon one another, eat candies and nuts all day, and have a marvelous supper. Some people go to church, and get a lot of Christmas spirit, and others don't.

Christmas

I'm not telling you to go to church, I'm just asking you to pray for our boys in Korea, who are fighting and dying for our right to celebrate Christmas, and for Europeans and Orientals, whose Christmas will depend on a C. A. R. E. package we may send, and even for the people of Russia who are not allowed to celebrate Christmas.

You and I are the luckiest people in the world, because we are Americans, and being an American is something to be thankful for. Let us wish the happiness we know in our country, and our American way of life, be known to ALL men.

—Lewis Biddlecome

WINDOW-TRIMMER TRIMS GROCER TOO

A 29-year-old Oakland window-display salesman pleaded guilty here Friday to stealing 16 cigarette lighters from an Alvarado grocery he was decorating for the holidays.

Kenneth E. Larson of 439 42d Street, the salesman, was charged with petty theft by T. B. Matsumoto of 1537 Smith Avenue, Alvarado. Mutsumoto said a customer, Mrs. Eugenia Gamboa of Mt. Eden, spotted Larson taking the lighters, valued at a total of $40.

The grocer said he found four in Larson's car. Sheriff's Lt. L. R. Creighton said Larson could not explain his act, saying it was done "on the spur of the moment."

Larson appeared before Judge Allen G. Norris and will re-appear January 9 for a probation report.

Say you saw it in The Register.

Seeks Factory Aid

The Township Chamber of Commerce will seek to make up an expected deficit next year by contributions from large local industries.

This word came yesterday at the Centerville Chamber meeting from Harry Weber, treasurer of the Township organization.

Weber said the Township Chamber now gets $1800 a year from Alameda County, and only $630 from the eight local chambers of commerce. He said Secretary-Manager Eugene Manning gets no money for typist service, or for office rent, and that this situation will have to be remedied.

Weber added he and several of his committeemen will contact "these big industries" in a request for membership contributions."

CHRISTMAS PACKAGES

Christmas packages square and round,
Some will rattle, others won't make a sound
You wonder what's in them, you try to guess,
Is it a new shirt, or a new dress?
You wonder, "Oh dear, what can it be?
I guess I'll have to wait till Christmas to see."

A LAME DUCK QUACKS

The election of November 4 is over—for everybody except Harry Truman. In an interview of unprecedented virulence, the outgoing President took a parting shot at a couple of old targets: General Eisenhower for going to Korea and General MacArthur for suggesting he might have a solution for the Korean conflict.

Truman's nastiness shows America's worst face to nations who look to us for leadership. Who now can doubt the sincerity, the value of Eisenhower's danger-fraught trip? Aside from the information it rendered the President-elect and his key advisors, the voyage was a symbol of better things to come, a sign that a positive and vigorous approach will be made to the tragic war in Korea. It gave new heart to a saddened Nation.

As for the MacArthur hint, who can doubt that the distinguished dean of American Arms can contribute something valuable from the files of his vast experience in the Orient? Eisenhower's decision to meet with MacArthur might have galled the little man who fired the old warrior, but it showed those who fear the K-War that no approach would be overlooked.

Harry Truman has often commented his contribution to history cannot be determined except by historians. That may be so, but we'll bet a Truman dollar that when the last archive has been cleared, Harry's bad temper and smallness of spirit will outweigh his achievements.

Drainage Problems

Pleasanton area. Last week in Newark, Supervisor Chester Stanley explained:

"We have to set up projects within the zone by February 1 if we want to call any bond issues this year to get the work done."

Stanley told The Register the first project here probably will be an "interim" job of opening clogged Alameda Creek outlets to the Bay. Hearings must be held at every step, he stressed, so the supervisors can be guided on financing such jobs—either by assessment or bond issue.

In Irvington, Wright denied a proposal to have the sanitary board handle flood work would cost only about $15,000, as suggested at an Irvington Chamber of Commerce meeting two weeks ago.

"It looks more like $100,000," he declared. "We can't have water running in open ditches for younghters to fall in."

Wright said the County Planning Commission, which he also heads, is opposed to open ditches.

"However, I'm for this 100 per cent," he added. "It's a big undertaking, but we can't build a fence around Irvington which would keep subdivisions out."

Wright said he will confer shortly with Harry Goodridge, the district's engineer, to see how much a survey will cost and when it can be started. Only in this way, he stressed, can the district determine the magnitude of the operation.

The district is now bonded for about $100,000, Wright said. Any large undertaking such as is proposed, will require more bonds, he added.

Meantime, J. F. Vivrette, chief office engineer for the Alameda County Flood Control District, disclosed he has sketched plans to drain the land southwest of Centerville by huge open ditches.

Vivrette's plan came to light when Glenmoor Homes, a tract south of Central Avenue, agreed to set aside a corridor for one of the ditches to the Bay.

Vivrette's ditches could run through unbuilt property in a straight line to empty into the marshes, he stresses. Their routes:

1. Along Thornton and Mayhews Landing Road.
2. Between Baine and Central Avenues.
3. Through Glenmoor Tract, under the American Forest Products yard, along Robertson Avenune to the Bay.
4. West of Mowry Road.

Vivrette said the land ought to be set aside as soon as possible, probably through the agency of Zone 5 of the Flood Control District.

Looking Backward

TWENTY YEARS AGO
(From Township Register December 22, 1932)

The Register's self-proclaimed "pet project," extension of First Street through the California Nursery property to Alvarado Road, was assured when the supervisors appropriated $5600 for rights of way.

Mrs. John Pine of Niles was injured in a collision at the SP underpass.

County voters okehed a $3,000,000 unemployment relief bond issue.

W. H. Ford, gravel magnate of Niles, renewed his offer of $100,000 to help start a junior college here. But public officials and civic groups shied off the plan, contending that the depression was a poor time to start anything that might increase taxes.

Janet Richmond was installed Worthy Matron of Orient Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Centerville was deep in a controversy over whether Main Street should be called Main Street or Hesperian Boulevard.

TEN YEARS AGO
(December 18, 1942)

Servicemen were in the news. Colonel Charles B. Overacker of Niles was placed in command of one of the first U.S. airfields in England. Col. Overacker had just been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Cyrus Solon Jr. was to receive his Marine Corps commission December 30 and was to marry the following day.

George H. Mathiessen, a radioman 3/c, finished Navy radio school in Oklahoma.

Francis Duarte and Ray Magagna of Niles were in the field artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Vice-Principal Jack Rees calculated the draft would take more than half of Washington Hi's Class of '43 upon graduation in June. It did.

It was war! Editor Walter Wayneflete warned readers to draw their shades and douse their porch lights. They were illegal. And Leone Baxter, in another war-inspired editorial, urged everyone to plant victory gardens to supplement food supplies.

HILLVIEW VIEWS
By JACK BOWERS

LOOKS like Hillview will never have a shopping center, unless somebody has enough money to purchase property where those tarpaper shacks or boxes are standing. It seems the people who built Hillview want a considerable price for the property. Some people say we need more homes to be able to support a shopping center, but in the meantime it's quite a long walk to the nearest market.

MR. and MRS. ROBERT T. UNDERWOOD of 1523 Lafayette St., will soon hear the pitter and patter of little feet, the date set March 12, 1953.

A FEW PEOPLE are digging wells so they can have their own water supply. I can't blame them. There must be gold in them thar pipes at $12 to $24 a month.

NICE GOING to those people who have decorated their homes during the Christmas season.

ANYONE HAVING ANY NEWS please contact me at Decoto 2-3155 or 1146 Valley Forge Street. Thanks.

HUSKY FIVE LOSES PAIR ON WEEK-END

The Washington Huskies dropped both games on their basketball trip last week-end.

They were defeated by the Santa Cruz Cards Friday night 61-43, and lost a heart-breaker Saturday night to the Monterey Toreadors, 51-49.

The lightweight five broke even on their games. They lost to the Cards and then bested the Toreador Bs, 39-27.

Friday night against Santa Cruz, the Huskies were without the services of Forward Tony Nevas, and 6-foot 6-inch John Montgomery of the Cards stopped the Huskies cold.

Saturday night against Monterey the Huskies played their finest game of the season. The Toredors, rated one of the top teams in the state, were loaded with height, typified by 6-foot 4-inch Charley Howell.

The Huskies led the Toreadors until the last 15 seconds, when the score was knotted at 49-49, and Howell powered two points through the hoop for the victory.

Washington's Allan Olk and Antoine Rigmaiden teamed up and did a masterful job on the backboards, Rigmaiden scoring 17 points. Howell tanked 20.

The Civil War cost to U.S. $15,655,515,516.

BIDS ON MISSION FIREHOUSE HIGH

Commissioners of the Mission San Jose Fire District this week pondered what to do about their new firehouse, bids for which exceed by almost $2000 the $24,000 budgeted for it.

Last Thursday, when the Supervisors opened the bids, the lowest was found to be $29,740, by Contractor Richard H. Lincoln.

Architect LaRue Sorensen said this could be cut to $25,900 by eliminating (1) asphalt tile in offices, meeting-room and kitchen, (2) a new siren tower, (3) rock-wool insulation in the attic, (4) tile from bath-room walls, and (5) yard paving.

Sorensen said the commissioners will meet and prepare a recommendation for the supervisors by December 30.
